

Getting Animated About Bioethics

Bonnie Green, University of Leicester

bg62@le.ac.uk

Overview

- Off-shoot of the BioethicsBytes project
- Resources of the (award winning) IT Services department
- Introduces both science and ethics of the topic
- Experiment in using animation as a way of illustrating discursive issues in bioethics
- Accompanied by teaching/learning resources on a dedicated website www.bioethicsbytes.wordpress.com

The film

www.bioethicsbytes.wordpress.com

www.bioethicsbytes.wordpress.com

The film

- Combines animation and 'talking heads'
- Uses traditional documentary film techniques
 - In filming
 - In editing
- Broken down into sections
 - Correspond to different aspects of the science or ethics of the topic
 - Accompanied by different supplementary materials and activities

The website

- www.le.ac.uk/ge/bioethics/video/pgx.html
- Worksheets
- Case studies
- Scenarios
- Other features
 - Background for teachers
 - Lesson plans
 - Additional animations

www.bioethicsbytes.wordpress.com

Acknowledgements

Chris Willmott & David Willis
BioethicsBytes, University of Leicester

Carl Vivian & Jon Shears; Dave Wickens
IT Services, University of Leicester

Howard Pringle
Dept of Cancer Studies & Molecular Medicine University of Leicester

www.bioethicsbytes.wordpress.com

